After obtaining a master in blood cells' biology in 2008 (René Descartes University, France), I graduated in 2011 as a MD specialist in clinical hematology (Rouen University, France). I practiced hematology and was appointed as investigator of a dozen phase III trials until 2015.

Since 2016, I am responsible for the delivery of blood products in North East France (Etablissement Français du Sang) and analyze transfusion practices in 11 sites and their clinical counterparts. I organized transfusion audits (PaBLoE, EBA) and seminars in hematology and cardiovascular surgery, and introduced delivery quality indicators. I obtained a university degree in transfusion medicine in 2017 (Paris Est Créteil University, France).

My presence at the ICC-PBM will be on behalf of the French Transfusion Society, of which I am an active member.
